Making the most of your technology assets

Our solutions are based on your specific situation, your business objectives or day-to-day needs and processes. We not only take into account the problem or issue requiring resolution. We also measure our recommendations against the benefits they are designed to deliver. So they not only make sense from a functional perspective, but also from a business and financial perspective and from a user perspective.

As such, our past solutions vary in size, scope and type of technology and involvement required, such as:

- Integrating business systems
- Moving commerce, accounting or communications to the Web
- Sharing content within a department or among multiple departments and locations
- Implementing content management systems
- Improving access to information and data
- Facilitating more efficient document management
- Transaction processing systems

Off the shelf. Out of the box. Sounds simple enough, but that doesn't mean the application will work the way you need it to. Or maybe the application you need doesn't exist at all. That's the beauty of Jelec's custom development. Whether you need specialized functionality, interoperability or online capability, we're up to the task.
